BOURGOGNE

PINOT NOIR

Once criticised as a minefield of atrocious wines dotted with the sublime, Burgundy is now a fairly safe bet for some of the most sublime Pinot Noir in existence. The really top stuff costs a bomb (see the "serious bottles" section on this page) but there are some exceedingly good wines - particularly from the 2005 vintage - that express the different nuances of their commune.

RHÔNE

The northern-Rhone vineyards (Côte Rotie, St Joseph, Cornas, Hermitage & Crozes Hermitage) are Shiraz (Syrah) country, while the south (Côtes du Rhône & Châteauneuf) are a mix of grapes...predominantly Grenache. The great Syrah-based wines come from Hermitage (the hill after which Grange was originally named) and Côte Rotie.

BORDEAUX

CABERNET/MERLOT/CAB FRANC

Bordeaux can be basically divided into two parts; the Cabernet-based wine of the left bank, and the Merlot- and Franc- based wines of the right bank. For the really top stuff try the "serious bottles" on this page, but there are an abundance of exceedingly good wines that won't demand a second mortgage. Those from the 2000 vintage should be drinking brilliantly.
